

AvStar Aviation Group, Inc. Announces its “Maintenance and Repair Organization” (MRO) “Affiliate” Program

HOUSTON, TEXAS – December 16, 2010. AvStar Aviation Group, Inc. (AvStar) (OTCQB: AAVG) today announced the creation of its “Maintenance and Repair Organization” (MRO) “Affiliate” Program that will facilitate AvStar’s continued growth in a vertical manner, reduce costs to its operating companies and be uniquely positioned to acquire affiliates in the future.

There are approximately 4,200 FAA Certified MROs in the United States. A large number of these MROs are small owner operated entities specializing in the overhaul and repair of airframe and engine components for commercial air carrier and the private/corporate operator. Sources of capital, effective marketing, employee security, and a secure exit strategy are but four of the challenges the owner/manager of these MROs must navigate.

"The owners of many small MROs find themselves in the position of having additional business available but in today's banking environment are unable to acquire capital for the addition of employees and equipment. Having an affiliation with a public company will provide the individual owner sources of capital not otherwise available to them and provide AvStar future acquisition opportunities" said Clayton Gamber, CEO of AvStar Aviation Group, Inc.
